Designed for Academies and Schools,

By the Rev. CHARLES A. GOODRICH.

Illustrated by Engravings. 1 Vol. 12mo.

The following is from the Spirit of the Pilgrims for September, 1829.

"The incidents in this work, are well selected and arranged; the style is sufficiently elevated and always perspicuous; and the volume will be found interesting and useful, not only in academies and common schools, but in private families. The plan of making Ecclesiastical History the subject of attention and recitation in the higher schools, is obviously important, and we know of no work more suitable to be adopted as a text book, than the one before us."

easily intelligible—designed for the use of schools and private pupils.

In 1 vol. 8vo.

The following is from the Connecticut Observer.

The recommendation below it gives us much pleasure to insert. We believe it will be found just, and no more than just. We say this not from our own knowledge, for we have no claims to authorize us to criticize such a work; but we say it on the authority of those whom we think to be good judges.

THE AMERICAN PSALMODY.

Having examined the above work, edited by Mr. Elam Ives and Mr. Deodatus Dutton, we most cordially embrace the present opportunity of recommending it to the attention of the different religious congregations of our State. It contains the best selection of Tunes, Anthems, and Set-pieces, and the most perfect system for teaching Musical Elocution, that, to our knowledge, has ever appeared in this country.

THE SCHOOL DICTIONARY.

Designed for the use of Academies and Common Schools in the United States.

BY THE REV. WM. W. TURNER,

Instructor in the American Asylum.

In 1 vol. 18mo.

The following is a copy of a letter from the Rev. Mr.
Gallaudet.

"The School Dictionary, by the Rev. William W. Turner, I have examined, and consider as entitled to a high rank among the improved books which are now, to some extent prepared for our academies and common schools. The sentiments expressed in the Preface are judicious and correct, and deserve the serious attention of all who are concerned in the education of youth. The happy selection of words, in this Dictionary, the general simplicity and clearness of the definitions, and especially the introduction under many of the words of appropriate illustrative examples, all conspire to render the volume deserving of a conspicuous place among those comparatively very few elementary works which are designed to aid in the accomplishment of the important object of making our youth more familiar and accurately acquainted with their mother tongue.

T. H. GALLAUDET.

Principal of the America Asylum for the Education of the Deaf and Dumb.

PETER PARLEY'S METHOD OF TEACHING GEOGRAPHY TO CHILDREN.

With nine Maps and seventy-five Engravings, principally for the use of Schools.

The Journal of Education says,

This work is well calculated to answer the purpose for which it is written, viz. to teach the first steps in geography. Such a work is much wanted, there being no one, either expressly designed for, or suited to this end. There are several valuable works for more advanced scholars, but none that is calculated to help the child easily and agreeably over the somewhat difficult grounds which lie between the primary reading lessons, and this popular and useful portion of juvenile study.

The neatness and clearness of the maps, the abundance of the illustrative cuts, and the free and colloquial style of Mr. Parley, together with the attractive qualities of the white paper and large print, are calculated to make the book a favorite with pupils, and we trust, with their teachers. It appears to us that schools which have the use of a book like this, must profit by it in the more rapid and thorough progress of its pupils, and as we esteem every thing that promises advantage to youth of importance, we commend this book to them, who, with ourselves, are interested in the cause of education.

VIII.

NATIONAL SPELLING BOOK,

Containing rudiments of Orthography and Pronunciation on an improved plan, by which the sound of every syllable is directly shewn, with progressive reading lessons, designed for the use of schools in the United States.

By B. D. EMERSON,

Principal of the Adams Grammar School, Boston.

The improvements claimed for this Book over most other Spelling Books in use, are, that the pronunciation of each syllable, and the accent of every word, is precisely known the moment the word meets the eye of the teacher, or pupil. This improvement has been effected by a most ingenious classification of the words, aided by a concise and perfectly simple Key. The Book has been found suited to progressive and intellectual improvement generally, and is peculiarly adapted to the exercises of monitorial teaching.

It is used in all the public schools in Boston; and those states, Vermont and Rhode-Island, which have appointed Commissioners for the selection of Books for the Common Schools of the State, have both adopted this book.

Mr. Pierpont, Chairman of the Boston School Committee, in a letter to the publishers, at the time the book was introduced by the committee into the Boston Schools, says; "I have frequently, as chairman of the committee, had occasion to examine Spelling Books for our Common Schools, but never, until the publication of Mr. Emerson's, has one appeared so far superior to Mr. Murray's, as in our opinion to entitle it to a preference in our schools. But Emerson's, when compared with any, published either in England or this country, has, in my opinion, the preference."

IX.

INTRODUCTION TO THE NATIONAL READER.

A selection of Easy Lessons designed to fill the same place in the United States that is held by Murray's Introduction.

By JOHN PIERPONT,

Compiler of the American First Class Book and the National Reader.

This work has been expressly prepared for the purpose of satisfying a want which has long been felt of a suitable book for the middle classes. The style presents a sort of medium between the familiar tone suited to a primary Reading Book, and the more elevated style of a First Class Book. Instructors who have examined it speak in the highest terms of the felicitous manner in which the author has executed his design, and it is fortunate that it has been done by the same hand as the National Reader, as no other could so well observe the necessary gradation of style.

X.

PRACTICAL AND MENTAL ARITHMETIC,

ON A NEW PLAN,

In which Mental Arithmetic is combined with the use of the slate, to which is added a

Practical System of Book keeping,

By ROSWELL C. SMITH,

In 1 Vol. 18mo.

From the Jan. No. for 1828 of the Journal of Education.

"A careful examination of this valuable work will show that its author has compiled it, as all books for schools ought to be compiled, from the results of actual experiment and observation in the schoolroom. It is entirely a practical work, combining the merits of Colburn's system with copious practice on the slate.

"Two circumstances enhance very much the value of this book. It is very comprehensive containing twice the usual quantity of matter in works of this class; while, by judicious attention to arrangement and printing, it is rendered, perhaps, the cheapest book in this department of education. The brief system of Book-Keeping, attached to the Arithmetic, will be a valuable aid to more complete instruction in common schools, to which the work is, in other respects, so peculiarly adapted.

"There are several very valuable peculiarities in this work, for which we cannot, in a notice, find sufficient space. We would recommend a careful examination of the book to all teachers who are desirous of combining good theory with copious and rigid practice."

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

The number of the Register for 1830, is presented to the public, at an earlier date than in former years, at the earnest request of most of its patrons. In order to effect this object the publisher has been compelled to insert the names of the last year's officers, in those towns that hold their annual meetings after the second Monday in November. Most of the towns make their elections in the month of October, or the first week in November, and where such is the fact, and returns have been made, the Register will be found correct.

No inconvenience is experienced in issuing the Register at this early date, so far as regards the officers of the General or State government, or various public institutions and societies. These, the publisher has aimed to have correct, and he trusts they will be found so by the public. The labour and difficulties attending a work of this kind can be imagined by but few, and errors are unavoidable. This can occasion no surprise, when it is considered, that the compiler is compelled to examine several hundred different manuscripts, many of them indifferently written. To the various respectable individuals who have assisted in furnishing the publisher information and materials for this work, he tenders his profound acknowledgements and gratitude, and solicits a continuance of their favors.

4 Eclipses---Elector's Meeting.

ECLIPSES, 1830.

EMERSON'S

"NATIONAL SPELLING BOOK."

The improvements claimed for this Book over most other Spelling Books in use, are, that the pronunciation of each syllable, and the accent of every word, is precisely known the moment the word meets the eye of the teacher, or pupil. This improvement has been effected by a most ingenious classification of the words, aided by a concise and perfectly simple Key. The Book has been found suited to progressive and intellectual improvement generally, and is peculiarly adapted to the exercises of monitorial teaching.

It is used in all the public schools in Boston; and those states, Vermont and Rhode-Island, which have appointed Commissioners for the selection of books for the Common Schools of the State, have both adopted this book.

Mr. Pierpont, Chairman of the Boston School Committee, in a letter to the publisher at the time the book was introduced by the committee into the Boston Schools, says: "I have frequently as chairman of the committee, had occasion to examine Spelling Books for our Common Schools; but never, until the publication of Mr. Emerson's, has one appeared so far superior to Mr. Murray's, as in our opinion to entitle it to a preference in our schools. But Emerson's, when compared with any, published either in England or this country, has, in my opinion, the preference."
